Note:

All prices are based on the amount of compressed data that we hold on our system

You can expect to get approximately 75% compression rates. This means if you have 10GB of data on your computer you will store and be charged for approximately 7GB

The compression rate of 75% is an average rate based on a range of different file types. If you store mostly images then your compression rate will be much lower as these files are already well compressed. If you store mostly text based files such as Word or Excel for example, you can expect much better rates of compression, up to 25% of your initial backup size perhaps.
